A Cincinnati paper publishes the result of special investigations in regard to the Winter and Spring wheat crops, the corn acreage, and the June supply of hogs. It places the outlook for wheat at 218,000,000 oushels for the Winter production, and 150,000,000 for Spring, making the total 145,000,000 less than amount harvested last year. The corn acreage in Western States representing over 77 per cent, of the production last year, averages eight per cent, increase over last year. The condition is generally favorable though somewhat backward, as a rule, the poorest cutlook being in Kansas and Nebraska.

During a recent storm, Henry Carmody, oridge-tender at Halstead street, Chicago, bridge was the hero of a performance that probably saved the lives of a number of In the midst of blinding wind and rain he had closed the bridge, through which a vessel had passed, and stepped into his shanty; a street car bound North dashed apon the bridge, and as it neared the center of the structure, Carmody glanced out of the window and was horrified to see the bridge slowly swinging open. Theldriverhad ducked down his head to ward off the force of the storm, and was apparently unaware of the fearful consequences of his neglect and danger ahead. Carmody took in the situation at once, and dashed out of the bridge house, and ran at the top of his speed across the bridge toward the car. Reaching the advancing team, he grabbed the horses by the bits, and sang out to the driver to put on the brake. The car was stopped about ten feet from the end of the rails, and over the muddy water of the river. The driver made haste to get across, and allowed the team to travel at a rapid gait. A horrible catastrope and loss of life was only prevented by Carmody's nerve and prompt

Harry Champlin was shot and killed by his brother-in-law, D. E. T. Lav, at Cincin-nati Ohio. Champlin was unmarried and addicted to drinking. For some time he had been idle and had lived with his mother who is in comfortable circum-stances. He had been in the habit of demanding and obtaining money from his mother, and when refused had been in the habit of abusing her. Last night he left home plesantly, promising his mother to return soon. Instead, he wenthome after 1 o'clock in a partly drunken condition, and went to his mother's bedside and began abusing her. He a wakened a visitor, Mrs. Glenn of Michigan, who went to him and begged him to desist. He struck her with a chair and returned to the abuse of his mother. This aroused Dr. Lay, and Mrs. Lay, Champlin's sister, and they came to the room. The coachman also came, and he and Lay, after a stroggle with Champlin, got him into the hall, intending to put him to bed, when he broke away from them and rushed down stairs and got a carving knife and returned Dr. Lay warned him to stop, but Champlin, with an oath, made at him with the knife. Dr. Lay, who was standing in front of his wife, fired and Champlin fell. Mrs. Lay screamed "You have killed him!" but the doctor replied and said that he had only shot to scare him. It was found however, that Camplin was dying, the ball having entered between the eyes. Dr. Lay was taken to the station house and locked up on the charge of murder. He regretted deeply the tragic termination of the affair, but made a clear statement of the entire transaction, showing that he acted solely in self defense and was released on $10,000 bond.

INDIAN ATROCITIES.

Continue Their Work of Leaving a il of Blood Across the Territory of New

A Silver City, N. M., dispatch of a recent date says: This week has been one of sus-pense and terror here. Never before have the Indians, on their bloody raids, come so near this city. The first news of the proximity of the Indians was received on Wedday, when Cody riding a horse, white with toam, dashed into the town from Weldy's ranch on Bear creek. He brought word that hostile Indians were in the hills and that an attack on the ranch, on which were gathered many women and children, who expected help, was an-ticipated. A volunteer company of thirtyfive was organized and went to the ranch on arriving at the ranch the parties started for the water hole in the hills where they ted to find the Indians, who, however, had fled. Scouts spent two hours in searching for the trail which led to Little Walnut creek. Along this stream west, horrible sights were witnessed—dead bodies frightfully mutilated and naked were found at short intervals; houses were pillaged and clothing and household articles scatered everywhere. At William Ogden's, five dead bodies, all scalped, lay in a pool of blood. Two women had been outraged and their breasts cut off. A five-year-old in the best bands of the contract of the cont girl had both hands cut off. Following the trail over the hills till Gomezranch was reached; a number of men were gathered there, they had escaped death by hidig there. Parties living in the vicinity had all been killed. Six miles further on at the house of Felix Marquez, five dead bodies were found. Mrs. Marquez and her seven-year-old daughter had both suffered at the hands of the Indians before being killed. The bodies were slashed with knives and presented a sickening spectacle. One of the heroic deeds that occurs on such occasions, was performed by little Willie Carpenter. His parents were some distance from the house when the Indians appeared; Willie and his sister were playing in the yard, the boy caught up his sister and slipped into the weeds, when he crawled a long distance and finally reached that city, having car-ried his sister five miles on his back. The parents were wild with joy to find their children, whom they supposed the Indians had carried off.

GLADSTONE IN THE MINORITY.

The Party Represented by Gladstone in the English House of Commons at Last Defeated.

Gladstone has at last been defeated in the House of Commons. The proposition on which he was defeated was one to increase the duty on spirits and beer in order to raise additional revenue to carry on the government. Gladstone was the last to speak and he delivered one of his grand impressive speeches. He thought that the opposition were creating a precedent, which they would regret when they came into power again. The previous reduction of wine duties had a beneficial effect in preventing adulteration and increasing trade, many millions annually. It would be most impolitic to increase the wine duty, unless under the most extreme pressure The government was compelled to raise money in view of the impending, to the Empire, a danger which he even now was unable to say had passed away. The opposition cavilled at the mode of raising the money without suggesting an alternative es would require an additional tariff of two pence per pound, to produce the same amount, thus raising the duty seventy per cent. on an innocent beverage. The government had to choose between alco holic liquore, tek and augar. He would accept the issue of the yote as one of life or

Princess Dalgarouki denother of the consequences. Mr. Gladstone's remarks were received with prolong d cheers. The government was defeated on the second reading of the budget, being rejected 264 to 262. When the result was snnounced Lord

Randelph Churchill and Mr. Parnell jumped upon their seats and enthusiasti-cally waved their hats and the cheering was renewed. Thirty-nine Parnellities and al' the conservatives voted with the major ity. The minority included Sir Michael Bass the brewer, and several Irish liberals. Many government supporters were absent.

Awful Nice Places.

Washington Republican.

"Fun!" exclaimed the old diplomat, as he threw himself into an easy chair at his cozy rooms on K street last night. "If you want fun, get the consulship at Malta, That's one spot where a man can grow rich abroad on $1,500 a year. And as for amusement! you will be simply crowded to death. Everybody on the island works and slaves at least sixteen hours a day, and he is fortunate indeed who counts his weekly stipend at $1.50. There never has been a theater, or a circus, or a 'secular holiday in Malta, and the popular amusement is confined to festal days, when the people congregate in one place and make themselves sick on pink candy. In the evening, when the hot, blistering sun goes down, you can go up to the basin, where the sea leaves a placid pool in the rocks, and indulge in the giddy dissipation of a bath. Oh, yes; go to Malta ond get rich. You can live there in splendor for $5 a week, but at the end of four years you won't know whether you are a catamaran or a blind fish. If that don't suit you, try Jerusa-lem. It's a great place for excitement, and after a year's trial, if you can scrape together enough energy to write a four page report to the state department, I'll eat my head. There is but one redeeming feature about Jarusalem-plenty of olives. And as for oranges, there is no place in the world where they grow so large. Jerusalem is a splendid town in which to study the antique, and a consul always gets rich on $1,500 a year; but the first consul became covetous, and induced congress to indulge in the extrav-

gance of raising his wages to $2,000.
Do you like music? Then get the commarcial agency Swansea, where the state quarrymen, the miners and the day laporers are all professional singers. Why, sir, at the last grand Elstedford the larels were carried away not by the trained choirs of London, but by a chorus of rough Welsh querrymen. Sing Why, they sing the roof off the houses and every house on the downs and in the crags contains a nightingale and a harmonicum. Down in the Penrhyn quarry the universal occupation of the querrymen off work is singing, and the men have excellent voices. It you don't like music try a Welsh laborer on theology. He is generally a non-conformist, and the only way I ever found to stop his religious discourse was to take him over to the Monmouth district-thereby evading the Sunday law-and fill him up with beer.

In the Welsh country printers on night work get $9.75 a week, and on day work $7.53; shipwrights get $9, boilermakers about the same, and the whole range of mechanical skill is fashioned on the general basis of $9 a week. Therefore, go to Wales. You may not have much amusement, but you'll get a gold mine of experience. "Then there is Dundee in Scotland.

Everybody drinks in that sin-cursed town, and it is stated that its population of 142,951 souls annually expends $1,500,-000 for spirits and beer. Dundee, you know, is the birthplace of Hector Bruce the historian; Halburton, who was the first to openly profess the reformed religion in Scotland, and Furgerson, the poet. But if these worthies could come back to earth they wouldn't own Dun-dee. The city to-day has 8,620 houses of only one room each, in which there is a population of 28,970, and 1687 house of two rooms each, into which are crowded 74,374 men, women and children. If to these be added the threeroom houses, with the population living in them, it shows that 118,000 of the 148,000 inhabitants of Dundee live in houses of one to three rooms. Poverty and misery abound, and yet it is the principal seat of linen manufactures, and is an important center of sugar refining, working in iron, and shipbuilding. Dundee is the saddest place to me on eath. Malta is a Cremorne garded of delights besides this city. But I must say for the wealthy citizens of Dundee that they have spent and are spending millions of mony in educational, charitable and eleemosynary institutions, great parks and magnificent churches. "Then there is Bordeaux. Now, if you want to lead a giddy, wild life, that's just the place for you. Bordeaux is one of the most flourishing cities in Europe in point of industry, commerce and the cultivation of fine arts and sciences That's what the guide book says, bu when you sift it right down its principa business is making wines and brand and exporting fruit. It contains the immense theatre built by Louis XVI accommodating 4,000 people. The poorer classes are gay and festive, and die young. Every workingman in Bordeaux as a commendable vanity for fine clothes, generally deemed incomplete without a pair of high heeled boots and a watch chain and locket of gilt metal The great tobacco manufactory, the gur powder mills, the saltpeter refinery, and the shoe factory there are owned by the government, which takes excel-lent care of its employes. There are 62,000 female laborers in Bordeaux, and it can truthfully be said that a majority of the unmarried women there are inliscrete and careless of their reputation. There are 1,000 women actually employed in the quarries, and 20,000 in the open fields. It is a beautiful city, though, and a splendid consulship.
